

I lovingly think of Kay and Jan as my spiritual parents, as they have provided me with loving guidance for approximately 15 years, very possibly more. It was more than awesome to have met them both. Interestingly, when I met Kay, we were attending another unrelated seminar/workshop and when we introduced ourselves, she introduced herself for the first time, publicly ever, as a medium. During our break, I sought her out, as I knew that I had called her into my life, and was so eager to meet her. (She remembers it slightly differently.) Donna was there with her, also with a smile on her face. Kay warmly invited me and several others to go to her house for a session and that's when I was utterly delighted upon meeting both Peter and Jan.

Kay and Jan opened their doors for biweekly sessions, even serving snacks and beverages, and I have made it a point to attend many, many, many. (I wouldn't be surprised if I hold the record for the most attendance.) They have also led us on several awesome trips too. They are the calm in the storm of my life and I am in deep deep appreciation of all three.

There are so many "Peterisms" that I rely on to get me through, but the one that probably is truly the most helpful is, "You can't do it wrong." SO COMFORTING to a person that worries and frets about just that. I have also relied somewhat heavily on using the "energy of hope". There is so much more, but these are the ones that serve me best. There is nothing that I could possibly give them in return to match all that they have given and done for me. I am and will be forever grateful.

Respectfully,
